Antibiotics Tried in Rations For Fattening Livestock

Livestock feeders should study carefully the increased cost before using antibiotics in fattening rations for cattle, say animal husbandry scientists at VPI.

Often, the increased cost of antibiotics will nullify the advantages of using them, the scientists say.

Average increased gain found in all research work to date amounts to 6% when antibiotics are used in fattening rations. Results with antibiotics have been more erratic than those with stilbestrol.

There is merit in using antibiotics for a new group of cattle being started on feed, the animal husbandmen say. Many feeders feel antibiotics reduce digestive disturbances if used the first 1 to 4 weeks of the feeding period. Antibiotics have not given any beneficial results when used on pasture.

Homemaker's Tips

Don't pour flavor away. Bacon drippings used for frying and searing meat give it a fine, delicate flavor. But be sure to use a little less salt when you cook with bacon fat.

Make your own "olive" oil. Soak four large olives, (unstuffed) in a cup of salad oil, keeping in tightly covered jar, in the refrigerator for about a week.

To find that clove of garlic in spicy cooked foods, put a toothpick in it before you start cooking. When time is up you can easily find and remove the garlic.

Metal kitchen cabinet doors can serve double duty as bulletin boards when you use small magnets to "pin" recipes, notes, and bills to them. Just hold your recipe on paper against the metal surface and place the magnet on top.

Rocks

Rocks, March 24.- The robins have been seen, so cheer up, spring is almost here in spite of the cold weather. Plan on an early garden. It's time to plant peas, beets, cabbage and potatoes.

NAMED TO POSITION OF TRAVEL DIRECTOR

Richmond, March 24.- George F. Wright, Jr., a newspaperman in Virginia since 1939, has been appointed Virginia State Chamber of Commerce staff director of travel promotion and public relations, it was announced today by Verbon E. Kemp, executive director.

Wright is resigning as Sports News Editor of The Richmond Times- Dispatch and will take up his duties with the Virginia State Chamber on April 14.

Wright will take over the section of the Virginia State Chamber which has been active in the promotion of the Virginia travel industry for 23 years.

The chamber annually answers thousands of inquiries about the Commonwealth and disseminates information about the State. It also joins actively in the promotion of the many activities of the travel and tourist organizations in Virginia.

EARLY CUT FORAGE REDUCES GRAIN NEEDS

Forages cut for hay or silage at early growth stages contain more energy and digestible protein than when harvested at later maturity, say dairy scientists at VPI.

The feeding of early-cut forages can materially reduce the need for concentrates in addition, as well as the cost of the concentrate ne

WATER SKIING IN A TUB

Rutherford, N. J.- Waterski while standing still? Yes, indeed.

Nicholas Baldfanza has patented a device called "Skirama," which lets you ski in 18 inches of water without moving. The device is to train water skiers, but it also provides the enjoyment of skiing without any of the hazards.

The Skirama user stands on skies in a six-foot long tub while water is pumped past at eight or ten miles an hour. The skier hangs on a tow-rope and, for realism, a large fan blows in his face.

HIGH SCHOOL AND ELEMENTARY P.-T. A. HAD JOINT MEETING

The Appomattox High School and Elementary P.-T. A.'s met jointly Thursday night, March 20, at 8:00 o'clock in the auditorium of the Elementary School, in observance of National Library Week. The Week had as its objective, "Better Read, Betted Informed America," and as its slogan, "Wake Up and Read."

A very interesting and informative program was presented by a panel, discussing "The Most Memorable or Favorite Book of My Life." Members of the panel were: Mr. Kenneth Christopher, Mr. J. A. Burke, the Rev. R. A. Bergdoll, Miss Harriett Holley, Miss Flora Belle Williams, Miss Julia Asher, and Miss Mary Owen Armistead. Each member discussed the book he chose, giving very interesting reasons for the selection of that particular book or books. Miss Julia Asher did not select a book as her subject, but rather she made an appeal to the parents to "Wake Up and Teach Children to Read." She pointed out that the love of books and the desire to read is implanted in the children first in the home, saying that children should be read to, using the proper books, until they are able to read for themselves. Prior to the panel discussion, Mrs. A. R. Harwood, Jr., who served as moderator, gave some very pertinent facts on reading in America. Following the discussion, questions from the parents were directed to the librarians, Mrs. J. A. Smith, Miss Julia Asher and Mrs. Henry Beard. These questions and answers gave everyone present a better understanding of our libraries and how they are used by adults as well as students. A very clear explanation was given by Mrs. Smith on how library books are purchased.

Following the panel and questions, Mrs. M. A. Herncall gave a most interesting talk on "What Reading Means To My Faimly." She said her family read for the pleasure derived, but more important for the knowledge and understanding derived from reading.

Ag an icentive to start home libraries, information was compiled, printed and distributed, setting forth how one can start a good library on a budget. It showed how one could start a library with $50.- or $100.00 and the books which should be included in these initial purchases.

FARM CREDIT STOCKHOLDERS TO MEET THIS SATURDAY

Stockholders of the Farmville Production Credit Association and National Farm Loan Association of Farmville will meet on Saturday, March 29, at the Farmville High School Auditorium at 10:00 A. M.

Mr. J. Thomas Vanderburg, the President of the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, will be the guest speaker for the occasion. Visitors as well as stockholders are invited to the meeting.

Financial reports covereing the operations of the associations for the year will be given by J. F. Glenn, Secretary-Treasurer. Directors' reports will be given by Mr. W. G. Harvie, of Amelia County, and H. E. Boswell, Jr., of Burkeville.

W. W. Vaughan, of Prospect, who will preside, is one of four nominees to fill two vacancies on the PCA board of directors, R. T. Hubbard's term also expires. Both have been nominated for another term, together with Frank Baber, Jr., of Cumberland County, and Aubrey Ferrell, of Charlottee County.

George O. Pettus, Jr., of Charlotte County and R. T. Hubbard, of Buckingham County, retiring directors of the NFLA are nominees for another term, together with John L. Harrison, of Appomattox County and W. B. Arnold, of Nottoway County.

Eligible members to participate in the session include 1,300 in PCA and 300 in NFLA in the counties of Amelia, Amherst, Appomattox, Campbell, Charlotte, Cumberland, Buckingham, Nottoway and Prince Edward.

The associations will provide lunch for those attending the meeting.

FIELD CROP SUPPLIES STILL EXCESSIVE

Feed grain prices are at their lowest point in almost 15 years — the result of new records in both production and carryover — say VPI agricultural economists.

Poor physical condition of the crop for storage may pull up late season prices, however, they say.

Sorghum grain production in 1957 more than doubled the previous record, with further increases expected, although large amounts are already going into government stock.

"Extensive exports under government programs, drought, and the Soil Bank, combined to cut the wheat carryover from last year. Excellent weather conditions in the winter wheat areas indicate that yield may increase this year to over one billion bushels, which would send carryover up again and prices down.

National soybean production increased last year although weather conditions hurt Virginia producers. Production trends should continue up with prices holding near support level.

Peanut production last year was down at least 6% nationally, 18% in the Virginia-Carolina area, but increased carryover stocks will more than take up the slack. There is no change in the acreage allotments for this year, but prices will average 1/2 cent more under "transitional" parity.

Drought, acreage cuts, and the Soil Bank substantially reduced tobacco production in 1957.

OLDEST IN NAVY

The oldest boat in active service in the Navy is a 50-foot wooden admiral's barge based at the Potomac River Naval Command in Washington, D. C. Now in her 46th year, the barge is almost as good as new. No one can remember having to replace any part of the hull in the past 15 years, and there is no evidence at all of decay in the wood.
